

Working for Justice from Inside and Outside Unjust Systems

Many people committed to dismantling white supremacy, patriarchy, colonialism and capitalism are drawn to jobs inside systems that are deeply harming our communities. We want to go in and make a difference. When we are in those jobs, we encounter the many obstacles to change, the limits to individual interventions, and the complexities of collective organizing. In this talk, aimed at students who are contemplating jobs inside unjust systems, Dean Spade will share about lessons learned and complex dilemmas that entangle social movement tactics taken up by people working for transformative change while navigating existing structures.

February 28, 2022 6:00pm-8:00pm

Presentation for the first 45-60 minutes, followed by Q&A

Register at bit.ly/Register4DeanSpade

Dean Spade, professor at the Seattle University School of Law. Dean has been working to build queer and trans liberation based in racial and economic justice for the past two decades. He's the author of Normal Life: Administrative Violence, Critical Trans Politics, and the Limits of Law. Check out Dean's Website at www.DeanSpade.net