

2023 EPIC SYMPOSIUM

EPIC INTEGRATED CARE IRL* TALES (*In Real Life)

Friday, October 6, 2023 – Live Via Zoom, 8:55am – 11:00am Eastern

Working Collabo: Before, During, and After

Presented by Dr. Ebony White and Dr. Sarah Wenger

In this talk, Drs. Wenger and White discuss supporting adolescents and young adults who reside in under-resourced communities through collaborative practice. Using an anti-racist, trauma-informed lens, they discuss the unique needs of this population, as well as the why, when, and how of collaboration, including the benefits to practice.

An Ocean Away: Traveling the World for Integrated Healthcare

Presented by Jordan Cunningham

This presentation describes and discusses the case example of patient, Leah, who travels from her home in Jamaica to the United States for expedited and exceptional care following a failed liver and need for transplant. Learn about Leah's integrated care team during her complicated journey at the hospital, traveling to and from home to the United States. This presentation dives into the research behind integrated care and how much it impacts quality patient care in the healthcare setting.

Bent Not Broken: Perseverance, Resilience, and Collaboration

Presented by Christen Bradbury and Dr. Charelle Lockhart

In this presentation, we will take you through first-hand experiences of disaster relief responders for Hurricane Dorian from preparation through the storm, and the aftermath to the current state of affairs. Our stories will reflect on collaborative clinical efforts, both medical and psychosocial, aimed at supporting the complex needs of children and families. We will include statistics from Hurricane Dorian; best practices for trauma informed care in children; the development and evolution of relief efforts (by both locals and international organizations); cultural considerations; objectives of services and supports provided: self-care: and the remaining challenges affecting communities in the Bahamas.
