

FALL 2020

DIGITAL INTERACTION AFFECTS EVERY CAREER.

Too bad most college grads have no idea how to study it.

SOCIOLOGY 225: Digital Social Research

Learn to gather and analyze data from platforms including Twitter, YouTube, Google, and Wikipedia to uncover social insights. These are crucial skills for students in sociology, psychology, political science, communications, criminal justice, business, health sciences, social work and more!

2:00-3:15 p.m. Tuesdays***

*This course is taught in a blended format, which means students will spend more time outside of class completing course requirements and less time in the classroom (compared to standard in-person courses). 3 credits.

Prerequisite: MAT 103 or higher (there's no need to remember much of the content, but students who are afraid of math/numbers may have more difficulty than others)
