

Corporal Michael J. Crescenzo Veterans Affairs Medical Center in Philadelphia, PA is seeking Veteran applicants for a psychology technician position. The opening is with the Mental Illness Research and Clinical Center (MIRECC), a research group, and the Behavioral Health Lab, a clinical program integrating behavioral health services into primary care. The role is a great fit for those with an undergraduate degree in psychology or other social science who are seeking clinical and research experience in the behavioral health field in preparation for graduate school.

Major duties include:

- Administering structured clinical assessments with patients and research participants
- Providing education on available clinical services and connecting patients to their preferences
- Maintaining accurate and complete clinical and research records

Qualifications include:

- Experience working in a research, clinical environment and/or healthcare field. Basic knowledge of regulations, policies, and practices used to administer research and clinical programs and projects in a healthcare environment.
- Knowledge and experience in telephone and personal interviewing techniques with the ability to assess stress and anxiety and react accordingly to facilitate care. Organizational and communications skills necessary for successful coordination with clinical and non-clinical hospital services personnel.
- Experience with data collection.
- Ability to prioritize duties and responsibilities for assigned projects, complete multiple projects simultaneously, and anticipate or identify errors with minimal supervision.
- Ability to work as a team member.
- Experience in standard word processing, data entry, spreadsheet, and graphic software packages.

Position is fulltime. An undergraduate degree in social science is required. Veteran applicants are encouraged to send resumes and cover letters to erin.ingram@va.gov.
